

Friends of Fort Caswell Rifle Range host Oktoberfest in Caswell Beach

Thanks to the music of the Back Porch Rockers, the Friends of Fort Caswell fundraising event was a huge success. The band played from 3 to 6 p.m. with no breaks, except for a brief time to eat dinner catered by Turtle Island Caterers.

During the noon to 3 p.m. arts and crafts sale, Dan O'Neill brought in more than 100 people to eat his grilled brats, chips and soda. Many folks drove by and decided to buy brats to take home to enjoy while others sat inside the fire station. The huge grill and signage beside the police building were quite effective in encouraging the public into the fire station to enjoy the happenings of people looking at the crafts and watching the band set up.

"We expect to make $2,000 after expenses," mentioned board member Norma Eckard. The money will be added to funds supporting the historic preservation of the 1918 Fort Caswell Rifle Range, located in our residential area, and publishing of the book to be placed in Brunswick County Schools and Brunswick Community College.
